Local Contractor Wins SBA “Regional Prime Contractor of the Year” Award, Region 1

BOSTON, MA – Security Construction Services, Inc., a general contractor based in Hudson, Massachusetts, is proud to be named the ‘2008 Regional Prime Contractor of the Year’ for the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) Region I, following a nomination from the U.S. Department of Transportation’s Volpe National Transportation Systems Center in Cambridge, MA.

“We are truly honored to be one of only ten recipients nationwide,” said Janet Ceddia, President of Security Construction Services, upon learning of the award. “This recognition exemplifies Security Construction’s commitment to providing our customers with the very best in construction services.”

Since its inception in 2002, Security Construction has experienced exponential growth in its sales, earning $15 million in government contract awards for fiscal year 2007 alone, and has more than doubled its workforce. The Company attributes much of its success to having a strong team of experienced project managers and an extensive network of subcontractor relationships across all key trades. In addition to its broad range of construction services, Security Construction boasts a self-performing fence division that not only provides quality commercial and residential fence products and services, but also is a leader in perimeter security, anti-terrorist fencing and intrusion barriers.
